Honeydew Facts: Available May through
October from California, Arizona and Texas. Mexico supplies product during the winter months. Good-quality Honeydew melons will turn a creamy yellow color and the skin will have a slightly waxy feel when ripe. They will be firm with a small amount of softness at the stem and will be fairly large - those weighing about 5 pounds have the best flavor. Sometimes, the seeds of an especially juicy melon will rattle if the melon is shaken. Avoid product that is too firm, too soft, has dark blemishes on the skin or is green-colored.
